HAVE RETURNED FROM NEW MEXICO

SCRANTON BUSINESS MEN HAD AN INTERESTING TRIP.

Were Wonderfully Impressed by the Resources and Natural Advantages of the Portion of New Mexico that Scranton Capital is Doing so Much to Develop-Major J. W. Oakford Chats in an Interesting Way About What They Saw in the Southwest. Great Timber Tract.

The party of Scranton business men who left here on Aug. 22 to pay a visit of inspection to that portion of New Mexico which is being developed by the New Mexico Railway and Coal company, of which C. D. Simpson, of this city, is president, has returned marvelously impressed with the region they visited. In mineral wealth and timber the region is of surpassing richness, they say, and the climate was a revelation. Although they were there during the warmest part of this very warm summer, at no time did they suffer from the heat to the extent they did in this city before departing.

In the inspection party leaving Scranton were E. P. Kingsbury, Major W. Oakford, C. P. Davidson, Thomas E. Jones, J. D. Williams, of this city, and Thomas H. Atherton, of Wilkes-Barre. At Toledo, O., they were joined by Frank E. Drake, of that city, and at Chicago by C. B. Eddy, president of the El Paso and Northeastern Railway company, which is one of the subordinate companies of the New Mexico Railway and Coal company and was chartered to build a railroad from El Paso, Texas, to Salado, New Mexico, a distance of 160 miles. At Salado are the rich coal deposits owned by the New Mexico company and one of the objects in mind when the road was planned was the development of these deposits.

HAVE ARRIVED HOME.

E. P. Kingsbury, J. D. Williams and C. P. Davidson arrived home Wednesday and Major Oakford and Thomas E. Jones yesterday. They left the other members of the party at Cleveland, O., spent a short time there and then journeyed to Ruffalo over Lake Erie on one of the magnificent passenger steamers that ply over the lakes. They arrived in Scranton during the afternoon. Major Oakford, when seen in his office in the Board of Trade building last evening, was enthusiastic over the trip and the country he had visited. "I was told a good deal about that portion of New Mexico and my curiosity was excited," said Major Oakford, "I wanted to see for myself if all the marvelous things said about it were true and I return convinced that not even all the truth about it has been told. "When we arrived in Chicago our party was taken in charge by Mr. Edly, president of the El Paso and Northeastern railway company and we became his guests. He escorted us to the officers car of that company which is probably the most modern and complete now in use in this country. That car was our home during the trip. Its name is the Paso del Norte, meaning the pass to the north, as the Mexicans were wont to call the pass leading north and from which the city of El Paso derives its name.

"The car has an observation end with double glass doors and screens tomake travelling as cool and comfortable as possible. It is fitted with air guage, speed indicator, electric fan and even a typewriter. The state-rooms have brass bedsteads and there is a well- that entire region, however, appointed bath room connected with them. At one end of the car is a dining room which can also be used for bservation purposes. This cozy apartnent will seat ten persons comfort-delightful trip had from Chicago to El Paso arriving there on Saturday, August 27, over the Santa Fe road. The car was switched onto the belt line of the New Mexico and Northeastern railway company which connects that road with the following entering El Paso: Southern Pacific Texas Pacific, Santa Fe and Mexican Central, By this arrangement the freight that comes in over the new road from the territory being developed can be shipped in any desired direction.

"After leaving El Paso the railroad for about ten miles winds through a lovely valley devoted to cattle raising and then gradually climbs out of the valley onto a high table land. Ther comes a waterless prairle through which the road shoots in a direct line for forty-three miles. The first point of interest on the road is the Jarilla hills which lift their head heavenward about three miles from the road near the end of this stretch of prairie. These hills are rich in gold, iron, copper and turquois. The gold mines were operated successfully when water had to carried a distance of forty miles across the desert prairie. These mines are now being reopened and in addition to the product of free gold a large amount of low grade ore has been uncovered that will prove profitable for shipment.

"Deposits of copper and iron discovered are very large and rich and this iron and copper ore will furnish much valuable freight for the railroad. Our next stop was at Alamagordo, eighty miles from El Paso, and the same distance from Salado, the proposed terminus of the road. It is to be the metropolis of the new region and is a town that is destined to grow very rapidly I think.

FUTURE METROPOLIS.

"When we reached Alamagordo w found a party of Mexican freighters ance. It will be constructed from plans camped for the night on the most valu-able corner lot in the town. We saw able corner lot in the town. We saw Monday the Nay Aug Lumber company the future city to consist of a few brick which has the contract for the buildblocks, some adobe and frame buildings, many tents and not a few anchored prairie schooners. These are to ber 10. supply the barest necessities of the people already pushing in and all buildwaiting for the completion of the saw mill and the brick yards. The town has a splendid location and many natural advantages. It will be the headquarters of the railroad, and there will be the offices, shops, etc., of the company and also the large saw mills that will be built to cut the timber from the immense tract on the Sacramento mountains owned by the company. "Along the railroad a strip of land 200 feet wide and a mile and one-half in length has been irrigated and trees and vegetables set out to show the possibilities of the soil. The trees are only young and, of course, one could not tell much about them other than that they are fine, healthy looking saplings. I don't think, however, that ever saw such a variety of vegetable in such a uniformly thriving condition

WHOLESOME ADVICE.

For People Whose Stomachs Are Weak and Digestion Poor.

Dr. Harlandson, whose opinion in diseases is worthy of attention, says when a man or woman comes to me complaining of indigestion, loss of appetite, sour stomach, belching, sour watery-risings, headaches, sleeplessness, lack of ambition and a general run down nervous condition I advise them to take after each meal one or two of Stuart's Dyspensia Tablets, allowing the tablet to dissolve in the mouth, and thus mingle with the food eaten. The result is that the food is speedily digested before it has time to sour and ferment. These tablets will digest food anyway whether the stomach wants to or not, because they con tain harmless digestive principles, vegetable essence, pepsin and Golden Seal which supply just what the weak stomach lacks.

I have advised the tablets with creat success, both in curing indigestion and to build up the tissues, increase flesh in thin nervous patients, whose real trouble was dyspepsia and as soon as the stomach was put to rights they did not know what sickness was. A fifty-cent package of Stuart's Dys-pepsia Tablets can be bought at any drug store, and as they are not a secret patent medicine, they can be used as often as desired with full assurance that they contain nothing harmful in the slightest degree; on the contrary, anyone whose stomach is at all deranged will find great benefit from the use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. They will cure any form of stomach weakness or disease except cancer of the stomach. Full size package at druggists 50c or $1.00 or by mail from Stuart Company, Marshall, Mica.

"Five miles from Alamagordo is La Luz, the present terminus of the railroad. It was settled thirty years ago by Mexicans, but since then many Americans have found their way across the desert prairie to It. Fruitraising has been the principal business here for years, and now that a rail-road has reached it and shipping advantages are offered, fruit-raising should attract more attention than ever before. The fruit has an unequalled flavor and is never attacked by worms Neither are the trees, which present an entirely different appearance from those we see hereabouts. All kinds of vegetables can be raised with scarcely an effort.

THE LUMBER ROAD. "At La Luz, the lumber road which runs up into the Sacramento mountains connects with the line. Lumber is now very scarce in that region and the company is very much hampered in its work for lack of it. Therefore it has been thought wise to concentrate every energy in the completion of this railroad and the opening up of the lumber tract which comprises a strip forty miles long and twelve miles wide of the finest timber in the country.

"The construction of this road was full of engineer difficulties, but they have been overcome and in about a month it will be completed. It is twenty miles in length and runs along the La Luz and Fransnel canons. Down this road the trees will be taken to La Luz and thence along the main line to Alamogordo where they will be cut and prepared for market.

"Our party went up to the timber land which is from 7,000 to 9,000 feet above the sea level. It was an interesting and somewhat exciting trip, the wagon road winding through the mountain along the edge of precipiess that gave magnificent views of the bottom of the canyon. We spent two nights camping in the mountains and found the thermometer registered in the horhood of of the day. The air is so dry in heat and cold can be endured with less annoyance than in Pennsylvania. These mountains are already much visited by invalids and will be the Meeca of persons suffering from pulmonary troubles within the next few years. "We went no further than La Luz and therefore did not inspect the coal beds at Salado. They have, however, been subjected to every possible tests by the best experts in the country and their values fully determined and the quantity found sufficient to supply a large tonnage to the road for three generations. As soon as the lumber land is opened the work of pushing the railroad on to Salado will be taken up. I am glad I went to New Mexico. Truly it is a wonderful country."

AN APARTMENT HOUSE.

To Be Erected at Corner of Monroe Avenue and Mulberry Street by Well-known Scrantonians.

One of Scranton's real, long-felt wants is to be supplied by the con-struction of a modern, up-to-date apartment house at Monroe avenue and Mulberry street by Fred C. Hand and James Archbald. These gentlemen ewn a plot of ground fitty-four feet front and ninety-five feet deep, which is at present occupied by two frame dwellings. These are to be torn down and in their place a handsome brick and stone apartment house erect-

It will be 45x80 feet, four stories in height and will contain six flats and two stores. The corner store room will be arranged for a drug store. The stores will be 161/2x40. There will be four six-room flats and two five-room flats with the necessary closets, baths. etc. They will be supplied with steam, gas, water, gas-stoves, electric bells and speaking tubes. PICKING FLAWS IN THE HANDLEY WILL

EXPERTS FOUND IN IT PLENTY OF ROOM FOR ARGU ... ENT.

Resume of the Attack on the Famous Document Made Before the Circuit Court in Williamsport-Incidental Story Telling the Reason Why St. Leo's Battalion of the West Side Didn't Get "the Handsomest Hall and Library in This Region."

As briefly mentioned in yesterday's Tribune, the defendants in the Handley will case admitted the kinship of the claimants and left to be decided only the question of whether or not there is an estate for these heirs to

The case was opened before Judge Acheson Tuesday morning by ex-Judge Jessup who proceeded to present the proofs of kinship but was halted by the defendants admitting this claim. He then went on to enumerate the law points of the plaintiffs and was followed by Colonel George H. Starr, who argued these points at length. Ex-Attorney General H. W. Palmer, City Solicitor Ward, of Winchester, and Major Holmes Conrad, associate counsel for the City of Winchester, presented the defense. The arguments consumed two whole days. Judge Acheson in no way gave any intimation of his impressions of the case by any comments or questions. He said he hoped to give his adjudication inside of three months.

The main contention of the claimants was that the City of Winchester was not capable under the laws of Virginia and provisions of its charter of taking and administering the trust, created by the residuary clause of the will which reads that the residue of his estate shall be invested for twenty years and that at the end of that time the income shall be expended for "the erection of school houses for the education of the poor.'

LAW IN VIRGINIA.

In Virginia, unlike in many states there is no doctrine of charitable uses, or in other words, the charters of municipal corporations have not been expanded so that they can "become trusts for charitable uses."

Incidentally, it might be remarked the Virginia legislature adopted the 'doctrine of charitable user' in 1896 but as no law can be retro-active it does not cover the present case. It is regarded, however, as an admission on the part of the Virginia legislators that Winchester was incapable of exercising such a trust, as it was undoubtedly the Handley bequest that pointed out the inadequacy of their aws in this regard.

it is further contended that the purposes of the trust are not germane to the objects of the corporation of the City of Winchester. The city has nothing to do with the education of the poor and if it undertook to carry out the behests of the trust it would be overstepping the authority of its char-

The residuary clause itself is held to be void and abortive, because there is an incurable uncertainty as to purposes or objects of the trust; also as to the practicability of erecting school ouses as directed; also as to what classes of persons are intended as beneficiaries. The residuary clause, the plaintiffs argued, admits of several distinct constructions, no one of which seems reareasonable as any other; and for that reason the purposes and beneficiaries intended are so vague and uncertain that no court can determine what the testator intended. What makes this the more embarrassing is a clause of the will which reads: "I do hereby declare that all of the several bequests made in this, my will, are made upon the express condition that none of the moneys * * * shall be applied to any other purpose whatsoever than those specially mentioned and herein appointed,"

COURT PREVENTED.

This, it was held, prevents the court from giving the will any construction other than that which the language of the items warrants.

It is impossible to determine whether the testator intended that the whole of the income of the residuary estate was to be applied solely to the erection of school houses, or whether a portion was to be used to buy lands and another portion to maintain the schools. In providing for the library, Handley specifically stated that only $250 of the equest of $250,000 should be applied to the erection of the library building.

No provision being made for the land on which to erect the school houses, there is no certainty that the trust will ever be carried out; in fact, it is as good as certain that it will never be carried out if the buildings have to call upon some third party furnishing the land and the means of maintaining the schools.

The attempt to carry out the trust t was argued, would prove abortive as the conditions forbid the city of Winchester from applying any part of the gift "to any other purpose whatsoever than those specially mentioned." and the only purposes mentioned are the erection of school houses for th ducation of the poor."

The phrase "for the education of the por" was given no little attention by the counsel for the plaintiffs. In itself, it was contended, it was sufficient to invalidate the residuary clause of the will, because of its uncertainty and

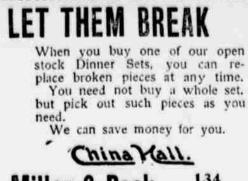

It was pointed out that the fund was ot for the education of the poor of Winchester only; nor for the poor of the world at large; nor for poor chil-The only certainty about the clause is that no rich person could at tend the schools.

WHO IS TO DETERMINE?

"Who," the question was asked, "is determine who 'the poor' are?" There is no limitation expressed or imolied and the city of Winchester is hereby entrusted with the education of the poor of the world, a task it is certainly not authorized to undertake inder the terms of its charter.

It was argued that it would be uncasonable to interpret the clause to mean that the fund was to be applied to the erection of school houses for the poor of Winchester. There are less than 6,000 inhabitants in the city and the total amount of money expended yearly for both the education of the rich and poor of the city is $3,600. It not reasonable to suppose then that the $60,000 income a year that the fund will provide was intended to be applied to the erection of school houses for

CITY ENGINEER SAID NO.

Would Not Allow Work on the Providence Pavement to Begin Yesterday-Why He Interfered.

City Engineer Phillips yesterday delined to allow George McDonald, contractor, to begin work on the proposed Providence pavement. The contractor s not prepared in point of labor or material to do the work, but was prompted by a desire to be sure and have a stronger hold on the city in case court granted the objecting property owners an injunction. The city's answer to the bill in equity must be filed not later than tomorrow. It will probably be filed tolay. On Wednesday Attorneys Everett Warren and A. A. Vosburg were re tained by the property owners favoring the pave to aid City Solicitor Mc-Ginley in looking after their interests.

In anticipation of a culmination of the proceedings favorable to the city, the city engineer says he "will not allow a pick to be stuck in the roadway." His position is assured by a section of the paving ordinance which provides that the work shall begin under direction of the city engineer and shall be performed under his supervision, While it is admitted that th tractor would have a good case against the city, his damages would be greater
